

The World Whirls On

By JIM WOOLDRIDGE

War Shifts Into Second

Signs of increasing activity in World War II were everywhere last week. British parliament members showed their disgust at the present means of winning the war by slowly starving the Germans into submission. As a result, the royal air force staged the largest air raid in history against the Nazi naval and air base at Sylt. The other ally, France, also clamored for more activity. Conservative premier Daladier was ousted and a German-hating politician Reynaud was asked to take his place.

Russia and Finland Again

Russia signified that she might resume her war with Finland when Moscow newspapers announced that Finland's new treaty obtaining military protection from Sweden and Norway was an unfriendly gesture toward the Soviet, a sign of lack of faith in the recently formed Soviet-Finnish peace treaty.

Observers believe that the Moscow-Helsinki treaty was only a temporary affair after all. They say that Russia only wanted to stop the hostilities for a time in order to organize her troops better; to take Finland in two bites instead of one big one.

British Air Raid

The reason behind the unprecedented air raid of the British, these same observers say, is a desire on the part of the Chamberlain government to put an end to the recent peace moves from Hitler. The time has come when English militarists believe their air force equal to that of Hitler's. No longer do they fear a mass bombing raid on London or on an industrial center such as Birmingham.

If their recent raid is an indication, the English strategists are conducting a program of bombing German air and submarine bases in the North sea and the Baltic. A few weeks ago they bombed Heligoland; before that they had attacked Wilhelmshaven. To destroy these convenient plane bases and thereby stop the Nazi bombers from planting parachute mines in the English ship lanes appears to be the objective.

Largest Raid On Record

Their raid on Sylt Tuesday involved the largest number of bombers employed since the inauguration of air warfare. For six hours, the British roared over the German base, wave after wave in a relentless attack. The reverberation of the bombing and anti-aircraft fire could be heard distinctly on the distant Danish coast. It was a clear, moonlight night, with drifting cloud patches in which the English planes could hide. After several tries, one British bomb found its mark in the ammunition dump on the island. Explosions which followed rocked the little island base severely, sending rocket shells burst out all around the fort. The pyrotechnics could be seen for miles. Several British planes were reported lost in the attack.

Retaliation

The next day, the Nazis retaliated by sending a bombing fleet to attack a group of British ships. German news agency D.N.B. reported that nine of the vessels were sunk, three of which were warships. The incident occurred off the coast of Scotland, near the naval base at Scapa Flow.

Washington — Postmaster General James Farley announced that he was definitely in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. It was reported that Farley had certain knowledge that President Roosevelt would not run for a third term before he placed his hat in the ring. A well-informed westerner who talked recently with Farley said he believed the postmaster general would have resigned before making the statement unless he had been confident the President would not run again.

Some interpreted Farley's declaration as an effort to force a statement from Mr. Roosevelt on the third-term question, senator McCarran of Nevada stated, "I am very glad he made a positive statement. I wish other great Americans would do likewise."

Backers of Vice-President Garner's campaign regarded Farley's move as a boon to the Texas candidate. The more Democrats seeking the nomination, the more candidates among which to divide the votes, and the more chance for a minority choice to win the nomination, they say.

What They Think

By BOB AMMONS

QUESTION

"Should physical education be compulsory?"

Gilbert Helton, engineering freshman—"All students should be required to take it but they should be allowed to choose a sport they like."

Margaret Brown, A & S sophomore—"Yes. Without exercise people degenerate. If we don't have physical education we'll have a degenerate generation."

Martha Sandifer, A & S junior—"Everyone should be allowed to take what he wants. I happen to want to take swimming."

Bill Hudson, A & S freshman—"The only thing I dislike about it is dressing twice a day."

NUMBER 11

Metropolitan Star Slated On Last Sunday Musicales

Season's Final Artist Will Appear At 4 p. m.

Muriel Dickson, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera association, will present the final Sunday Afternoon Musicales at 4 p. m., March 24, in Memorial auditorium.

Miss Dickson came to America in 1935 as prima donna of the D'Oyly Carte Opera company, original Gilbert and Sullivan producing company. She became an immediate favorite with audiences here and was engaged by the Metropolitan, where she made her debut in 1936 in a revival of "The Bartered Bride."

When the Metropolitan produced the new American opera "Amelia Goes to the Ball," one of the most successful novelties in recent times, Miss Dickson was warmly praised by press and public for her excellent performance.

During the summer of 1932 Miss Dickson was leading soprano of the Cincinnati Zoo Opera company, and during the past summer she was prima donna of the St. Louis Municipal opera.

Miss Dickson always includes one group of Gilbert and Sullivan songs in her program because she has found that young people of college and high school age are particularly interested in this group.

The complete program is as follows:

Se tu mami	Pergolesi
Morir voglio	Astorga
Aria: "Non so più cosa son" from "The Marriage of Figaro"	Mozart
This is no my maid	Arranged by J. Michael Dickson
Down the burn, Davie	Arranged by J. Michael Dickson
My Laddie	W. A. Thayer
Guitars et mandolines	Saint-Saens
Nicolette	Ravel
Aria: "Et quel doulx, et bon"	Masseenet
from Herodiade
"Love is a plaintive song"
from Patience	Gilbert and Sullivan
"If somebody there wanted to be married"
from Ruddigore	Gilbert and Sullivan
"When maiden love"	from Yeoman of the Guard
from the Guard	Gilbert and Sullivan
Josephine's Scene and Air from Pinafore	Gilbert and Sullivan

Education Of Officers Slated By Baptists

Officers for next year will be elected at a general Baptist Student Union meeting to be held at 8 p. m., Thursday, March 28, in the University high school auditorium. Pictures taken at Ridgecrest, Baptist summer camp in North Carolina, will also be shown.

The Rev. Wesley Shrader, pastor of the Felix Memorial Baptist church, and faculty adviser of the organization, will address the students.

Maurice Willis, president of the Union, urges all Baptist students to be present.

School Programs Given By YM-YW

Ten YM-YW students, representing the University, presented variety programs to the high school assemblies of Covington and Cynthiana, Monday, March 18, and Wednesday, March 20, respectively.

The programs are presented annually under the sponsorship of the YM-YW. Other trips to various Kentucky high schools are being arranged.

Representatives on the Covington program were Bart Peak, YM secretary, Thompson Bryant, Billy Karaker, Robert Spragens, George Terrell, and Asher Seal. The program at Cynthiana was given by Mr. Peak, Warren Dorman, Mac Francis Guffey, Barbara MacVey, Asher Seal, and Angela Arvuda.

Union Recital

A student recital will be presented at 5 p. m., Tuesday, March 26, in the Music room of the Union building under the direction of the student leadership committee of the music department.

Planning the program are Jean Marie McConnell, Louise Jones, Nick Ungrean, and Donald Plumby.

Point Sheets Are Available For ODK

Point sheets for entrance to Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership honorary, are due on or before Wednesday, April 17, at the Kernel business office, President John Morgan has announced. The blanks may be procured at the offices of Dean W. S. Taylor, Prof. M. E. Potter, Prof. R. D. McIntyre, or the Kentucky Kernel.

Concert Finalist ...

... Muriel Dickson of the Metropolitan Opera who will sing at the Easter Musicales.

STUDENTS FREED AT SECOND TRIAL

UK Committee Delays Action On Case

As yet no definite action has been taken by University authorities in the case of the two students who pleaded guilty to selling bogus tickets to the recent Kentucky state high school basketball tournament here.

The men's division on student standards, which met Tuesday afternoon to consider the case of the students, Gilbert B. Helton, engineering freshman, and Edgar (Bud) Wilson, commerce sophomore, stated that there is "nothing to report."

The dean of men's office yesterday afternoon said that the committee will probably meet again early next week to discuss the case further. Dean T. T. Jones who is a member of the committee, is out of town at present and will not return until Monday, the office said.

Previously fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 25 days in jail, the students were granted a new trial and released late Monday. City Attorney Keene Daingerfield, acting as judge in the absence of Police Judge Thomas J. Ready, paroled the youths to their parents.

UK Students Play At Transy Concert

16 Are Guest Performers As Capurso Leads Orchestra

Sixteen University students were guest performers at a concert given by the Transylvania symphony orchestra, which was directed by Alexander Capurso, executive director of the music department, Wednesday night at the Little Theater on the Transylvania campus.

The following students played in the orchestra: Nick Ungrean, Florence Cattadori, and Rosalee Herman, first violin; Harold Katz, Ralph Kemp, and Peggy Denny, second violins; Robert Waite, Shirley Ingram, and Margaret DeBord, cellists; William Echols, Jack Parris, and Carl Henderson, string basses; John McFarland and Harry Zimmerman, French horns; Marvin Rabin, viola; Perry Adams, viola.

Oratorical Contest Set For March 31

Patterson Literary society announces that the annual oratorical contest, open to all undergraduate students, will be held at 2 p. m., Sunday, March 31, in the Union building.

Members of the faculty and a representative of the society will act as judges, and the prize, amounting to about $25 in cash, will come from a trust fund left for that purpose by President Patterson. Speeches will be limited to 15 minutes, extemporaneous delivery will be permitted, and there are no restrictions as to choice of subject.

Carnegie Musicales

The Carnegie Musicales society will present a program of recorded music, appropriate to the Easter season, at 7:30 p. m., tonight in the Music room.

TO HONOR COHAN

Members of the International Relations class will hold a dinner in honor of Rabbi Samuel Cohan at 6:30 p. m. in Thursday in the Union building. Assistant Dean of Women Sarah K. Holmes will preside at the dinner and discussion.

JUNIORS TO VOTE FOR PROM QUEEN ON WEDNESDAY

Nine Coeds Proposed By Sororities, Independents

Election of the Junior Prom queen and her two attendants from a group of nine coeds will be held from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., Wednesday, March 27, in the Union building.

Seven sorority representatives and two independents have been nominated for the Prom honors. Selected by the sororities are Betty Mitchell, Alpha Gamma Delta; Anna Mae Bevins, Alpha Xi Delta; Mary Louise Weisenberger, Chi Omega; Jean Elliott, Delta Delta Delta; Annette Crouch, Delta Zeta; Billie Raymond, Kappa Delta; and Margaretta Ralliff, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Zeta Tau Alpha sorority is not represented because no Junior woman is in the active chapter.

Peggy Denny and Erma Jane Ries were selected to represent the independents at a meeting of the party Wednesday night.

This election, as far as can be determined, is the first time in the history of Proms that the number of candidates was not first lowered by the vote of a committee of judges. Previously, approximately 30 aspirants were nominated and the judges selected nine to be voted upon by the Junior men.

The student legislature will conduct the election. An election board, consisting of Robert Booton, Arthur Bryson, and Rollins Wood, has been appointed by President Bill Duty to make arrangements for the balloting.

The queen, who will reign during the Prom Saturday night, March 30, in the Bluegrass room, will not be presented until the coronation ceremonies at the dance.

Following the coronation, the Queen will conduct the formal pledging ceremonies of Launces, Junior men's honorary. This traditional exercise was omitted at last year's Prom because it was thought to be unpopular with the Junior class as a whole. Bids for the Prom will be distributed from 8 a. m. Tuesday, at the Union information desk. Junior men and women will receive one date bid and one tag bid. Seniors may obtain one date bid only.

Andy Kirk and his 15 "Clouds of Joy," featuring June Richmond, rhythm blues singer, will furnish the music for the Prom. Kirk brought his top-notch colored orchestra to the campus in 1936, when he played for the Sigma Nu formal in Alumni gym.

McVey Is Speaker At Dedication Rites

34th Anniversary Of Eastern State Teachers College Is Celebrated

Dr. Frank L. McVey was one of the principal speakers yesterday at the formal dedication of three new buildings at Eastern State Teachers college as scores of notables from Kentucky and neighboring states celebrated the 34th anniversary of the institution.

Gov. Keen Johnson, a member of Eastern board of regents, accepted the keys of the new buildings in behalf of the state.

Members of the College of Education who attended the dedication were Dr. C. C. Ross and M. E. Ligon, Professors Maurice Seay and J. S. Mitchell, Mary K. Duncan, Anna Peak, Fannie Miller, Katherine Conroy and Estelle Adams.

Nine Are Pledged By Arts Honorary

Nine students were formally pledged by Phi Beta, honorary music and art fraternity, Monday afternoon, at the Union building.

Selected for membership were Peggy Shumate, May Frances Gurfey, Joan Taylor, Alice Robertson, piano; Margaret Cohen, Maybelle Connelly, dramatics; Charlotte Sale, Stephanie Sorokoli, modern dance; and Janet Palmer, cornet.

Requirements for Phi Beta are a high scholastic standing, activities, and outstanding work in one department of music or dramatics.

Women's Banquet

The annual Women's Banquet will be held at 6:30 p. m., Tuesday, April 16, in the Bluegrass Room in the Union building.

Invitations are extended to all women students, mothers of women students, women faculty staff members, wives of faculty members, sorority housemothers, and residence hall directors, it was announced.

CAPURSO JUDGES

Alexander Capurso, executive director of the music department, is judging the Stanford county band contest today in Crab Orchard.

Union To Offer Spring Hop Saturday

With Bernard Crutcher and his 10-piece Troubadour orchestra furnishing the music, the first Union spring hop of the season will be given from 9 to 12 p. m., Saturday, in the Bluegrass room. Dress will be informal and admission will be 50 cents, the Union dance committee said.

STUDENT JUDGES WILL COMPETE

Livestock Contest Set For March 30

The annual livestock judging contest, under the sponsorship of Block and Bridle, honorary animal husbandry fraternity, will be held at 1 p. m. Saturday, March 30, in the livestock judging pavilion, according to an announcement by Charles Gibson, manager of the contest.

Entrants must register before 5 p. m. Friday, March 29. Gibson said; registration sheets will be placed on the bulletin boards in the Agriculture and Dairy buildings.

Judges for the contest will be Prof. L. J. Horlacher, sheep; Prof. E. S. Good, beef cattle; Prof. E. J. Wilford, hogs; and Dr. W. P. Garigus, mules.

Eight rings of livestock will be judged and analysis of judging will be given on one ring of beef cattle, sheep, hogs, and mules.

On the livestock arrangement committee are Jewell Collier, J. C. Barnhill, and Richard Fay. The awards and publicity committee is composed of Frank Rogers, Charles A. Smith, and Robert Booton.

Browning To Head Engineers' Society

Robert Browning, Flemingsburg, was elected president of the Southeastern conference of the American Society of Civil Engineers, reports received yesterday showed. Balloting was done at the conference convention in Atlanta last week.

Browning, a junior in the department of civil engineering, will be in charge of the society's convention at Georgia Tech next year.

Harry Weak's talk on soil conservation was awarded honorable mention in the contest held there.

Students Appointed As ROTC Officers

Four men have been appointed company captains and nine first lieutenants in the ROTC regiment. Lieut.-Col. Howard Donnelly announced today.

Appointed captains are J. C. Bode, G. P. Carter, C. C. Kissell, and E. L. Snapp, and first lieutenants, H. C. Denham, William S. Duty, Jr., Robert M. Hansen, H. E. Mackey, H. G. Malone, W. S. Riley, J. C. Tuttle, and James W. White, Jr.

MEETING POSTPONED

The meeting of the Bacteriological society, originally scheduled for tonight, has been indefinitely postponed because the speaker, Dr. H. H. Powell of the Lilly laboratories, Indianapolis, Ind., was unable to attend.

The society will meet at 7:30 p. m., Monday, in Room 307 of the Biological Sciences building, to hear an address by Dr. B. B. McInerney of the botany department, on "Phases of Algae."

Seymour, Noted Etcher And Designer, Says Fine Art Now Definitely On Skids

"Fine art is definitely on the skids," Ralph Fletcher Seymour, nationally known etcher and designer said in an interview yesterday afternoon at Maxwell Place.

Mr. Seymour supported his statement by pointing out that under changing economic conditions there is no place for fine art. Millions no longer pose as patrons of the fine arts. Few paintings are bought and more and more fine pictures are going to auctions, bought, but never paid for.

When asked what his chief interest in art is, Mr. Seymour said that he prefers etching and that his interest there is in characterization, that is, character studies of people. "Formerly I preferred landscape and scenery etching, but my tastes are changing," he said.

Asked what he thought of the University art department Mr. Seymour said that he believed the department offered a good art course and that the curriculum had been greatly improved since his visit to the campus several years ago.

Prior to the interview Mr. Seymour said he had been reading Dr.

SUNRISE SERVICE SET FOR SUNDAY

Program To Be Given At Memorial Hall

The annual Easter Sunrise service, conducted for students, faculty members, and townspeople, will be presented under the auspices of the YW-YM at 6:30 a. m., Sunday, March 24, at Memorial hall.

Junior and senior choirs of the First Methodist church will be guests of honor on the program. Following the services, the various churches and residence halls will have breakfast at their respective places. Anna Jane McChesney, Y worship group chairman, will preside during the program.

Included in the program will be a quiet meditation; call to worship and choral response; hymn, "Christ The Lord Is Risen Today"; anthem, "As It Began To Dawn"; a reading, anthem, "Hail To The Risen Lord"; story of Easter; anthem, "Unfold Ye Portals"; a reading; hymn, "The Strife Is Over"; and a prayer and choral Amen.

Home Economists Will Honor Faculty

Members of the Home Economists club will honor the home economics department faculty and extension staff at a tea from 4 to 6 p. m., Monday, March 25 in the Music room, Union building.

Active members of the club are making arrangements. Pledges will be guests, Janet Fergus is chairman of the general committee. Decorations will be in the club colors, blue and yellow, and spring flowers will be used throughout.

In the receiving line will be officers of the organization headed by Joyce Cotton, president.

Little Opposition Seen To 'Unconditional Abolishment'

Although little opposition to the bill was voiced a proposal for abolishment of Hell Week was tabled Wednesday by the legislature to allow students to express their opinion before the body voted on the measure.

Reasons for postponing action on the bill, as set forth by various legislators, were that the measure is too important an issue to be decided without student consensus and that time should be allowed for the students to inform their respective representatives of their opinions.

The measure will be voted upon at the next meeting of the legislature on Wednesday, April 3. Caldwell said yesterday afternoon that abolishment of Hell Week on this campus would be in accord with national chapters and the national Interfraternity Council. These organizations have already gone on record as disapproving the traditional observance, he declared.

The proposed bill will be found in complete text elsewhere in today's Kernel.

Acting upon an editorial recommendation by The Kernel, the legislature voted to repeal the bill providing for the election of the student president and two vice-presidents on April 24, and changed the date to April 29. According to student constitution requirements, election of the legislature will follow on May 28.

In accordance with a recommendation of the Junior Prom social committee, the legislature voted to conduct the election of the Prom queen and her two attendants this year. Bill Duty, president, appointed three members of the legislature, Robert Booton (Ag. Sr.), chairman, Arthur Bryson (Law 3), and Rollins Wood (Com. Jr.), to the election board.

Voting upon a proposal made at last meeting, the body unanimously decided to ask President McVey to deliver the commencement address in June.

Fourteen members were absent from Wednesday's meeting. They were Ammonds, Angle, Clure, Dannon, Harris, Hillemeier, Hunsaker, Lowry, Nash, Ramsey, Ramsdell, Staker, Triplett, and Webb.

Other business transacted by the body was granting of a lobbyist to Sukky, pep organization. President Duty reported that, before being presented at the next meeting of the Senate, the optional class attendance measure would be taken before the rules committee. This committee is composed of the deans of various colleges.

Faculty Releases Propaganda On Final Exams

Professors, noting the changing color of grass, the faint rays of spring sunshine, and hearing about Max Day plans, are beginning to broadcast small propaganda notices about final examinations which are ten weeks off.

This first hint of final exam publicity is a gentle prodding about keeping good notes, dates for term papers, and highlights which make good exam questions.

Those well intentioned reminders are voiced in the midst of still daily assignments, special reports, and quizzes. They are accompanied with the pretty hackneyed savings about keeping work caught up for each assignment, proper review for quizzes, not too many class cuts, and a good attitude.

The result is that a hint to the wise is sufficient; and that accounts, no doubt, for the A's which come up at the end of the semester.

Most of us, however, keep thinking we'll worry about that tomorrow, or that exam week is plenty of time to worry about questions that may pop up on the finals. And that accounts, no doubt, for some of the E's. — L. C.

Spring Cleaning—Hell Week Going

The inevitable is coming—thanks to the student legislature. Hell Week, that obnoxious, adolescent hangover will soon be only a tarnished memory if a bill introduced at Wednesday's session of the student legislature meets the approval it deserves at the governing body's next meeting.

Tabled at the recent meeting to allow student consideration, the bill will come up for a vote on Wednesday, April 3. What's more, it has a good chance of being passed.

Although this has been gone over before, THE KERNEL would like to reiterate a few of the many reasons for abolishing Hell Week.

- 1) Hell Week activities invariably reflect unfavorably on the University.
- 2) Faculty members have complained so frequently about the practice that there is good reason to believe that abolition would soon come from the administration, anyway.
- 3) Pledge class standings suffer.
- 4) Almost without exception, national officers stand opposed to Hell Week.
- 5) Organizations frequently lose good pledges because of the practice.
- 6) Injuries to the physical and mental well being of pledges have been known to result.
- 7) Groups, in pursuing this system, are furnishing their critics with ammunition for condemning all Greek-letter organizations—many times, unjustifiably.
- 8) Most fraternity men on this campus agree that Hell Week hurts organizations more than it helps.

The only statement which we have been able to cull from the noise of those supporting Hell Week is that by some mysterious means, the pledges in undergoing hardships together form a stronger bond of friendship among themselves, and that the fraternity is able to tell, by witnessing the treatment, whether the pledge is the "right" man for the group.

It would seem that the fraternal group which advances this reason is acknowledging a weakness in itself. The higher type organization will furnish its pledges with other, more normal, ties of friendship. As for picking the "right" man, one seldom hears of a pledge being ejected because he was discovered to be the "wrong" man under "torture." If he does refuse, to undergo such treatment, the action is usually twisted by saying that he "just wasn't our type of fellow," which, probably, is all too true.

THE KERNEL, of course, has long been opposed to Hell Week. We are biased. Nevertheless, we believe that those organization members who stop and think will realize they are boosting their own groups' reputation by supporting the legislature's bill.

Behind The Eckdahl

By
ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

JOHN SAMARA, Guest Columnist

Today is the first day of spring. Mother nature is expressing her joy in blooming flowers and budding trees, and silly students all over the country are expressing their sentiments with silly poetry. So, our face lit up with the joy of living, we approached our editor and asked if he didn't have some words of wisdom, truth or beauty to impart to students faced with the grim crisis of spring. "Sure," he growled, "Keep off the grass."

Which only goes to show you how some people's minds work.

We were pleased to end to read the recent announcement of a women's military drill team. Too long have the foolish females murmured sly remarks to the effect that "there's something about a uniform." Now, we hope, they'll have a chance to wear those itchy woolen shirts.

This being election year, with nominations the order of the day, we would like to announce our presidential candidate—none other than that sterling exponent of law and order, that Botanical Garden guardian, the peepul's choice—Kelly, the campus cop.

Besides possessing all the attributes of good presidential timber (see any campaign speech for particulars), Kelly has more color and political oomph than all of the potential Republican candidates put together. Then too, his election would leave the B garden unpatrolled. And thus: "We'll go to the top with Kelly the cop."

Pasted on the side of "Wikken" Pearce's of ice desk, along with the telephone numbers of three narcotic agents and a Department of Justice man, is the following definition: flubby—plump; clumsy; short and stubby—just a nice juicy adjective waiting for some coed to attach itself to.

Have you a boring professor in your course? Does he plague you with rony jokes which, for want of a grade, you needs must listen to? If so, send them along (the jokes, not the professors) and maybe we can discourage the practice. You have no idea how unfunny a thing can look in print.

They must be truly professorial, though; student jokes are ineligible; they wouldn't stand a chance, anyhow.

Just to start the ball rolling we'll contribute the following, rendered in jovial, sprightly fashion to a soundly sleeping class in economics recently.

"They tell me about the economics teacher who dreamt one night that he was teaching his class. Pause . . . He awoke and found that he was."

DEFINITIONS:

A bustle is a deceitful little scamp.
A smood is a bustle worn over the brain.

Is there any truth to the rumor that when one of the participants in that recent slugfest in a campus hangout was asked if he didn't know that it was unsportsmanlike to kick a man when he's down, replied, "What do you think I got him down for?"

QUERY OF THE WEEK:

What did Mrs. Conlucious say?

Of course we knew that today wasn't the first day of spring, as stated in our first paragraph, but we just waited this long to correct it because we wanted to see how many people read this far. We know that it was yesterday.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

We are curious too, so we didn't correct the foregoing statement. Everybody knows that Sunday was the first day of spring.

FBI men are frustrated, not knowing whether the signature on a student ticket book belonged to the person who accidentally burned it. They are wondering if this wasn't just a diabolical scheme to evade the amusement tax.

After attending a few convocations and meetings around here, we conclude that what this university needs is fewer speakers and more listeners.

Der fewer Der Feathers, der fewer der troubles der would be on der Continent. — W. T.

The drive "to make the University campus one of the most beautiful in the United States" is truly worthy of support, but it seems too bad to tear down all the new buildings. — G. L.

The Student Legislature Starts Spring House Cleaning

Proposed Hell Week Bill Bill Recently Presented To Legislature, Will Be Voted On April 3

For several years now, persons on this campus, as well as persons throughout the entire country, have been gradually growing more and more irritated with college Hell Weeks. Today the question has become acute, and several national magazines have dealt with it in a manner decidedly complimentary to us undergraduates. It is actually being used as an argument against the fraternity system, when actually there is little reason for it even to constitute an issue.

As a result, many colleges and universities have, either by student or faculty action, abolished them already. At the University of Kentucky, however, they are still permitted, although the bulk of public opinion is against them.

There are several specific factors which indicate that the time is ripe for the abolition of Hell Week on the UK campus:

Reasons For Abolition
1) Each year citizens of Lexington complain to the school authorities about the Hell Week activities of the "University students." Although only a small percentage take part in them, the practice is a reflection upon the student body as a whole, as well as upon the fraternities and sororities which permit them. Needless to say, this does no good to our reputation.

2) Ten fraternities and two sororities, comprising half the University Greek chapters, voted voluntarily this year to abolish Hell Week, indicating that at least half the Greeks themselves are opposed to the practice.

3) Many faculty members registered complaints this year against students being unprepared and sleeping in class because they were kept up the night before on "road trips." This occurred despite the sincere efforts of the Interfraternity Council to restrict the activities in such a manner as to keep criticism at a minimum.

4) Many of the fraternity members themselves (even some who say they approve of Hell Week) have expressed the opinion that this year was the last time the practice would be permitted on this campus. This indicates an opinion that sooner or later the faculty is going to outlaw hazing entirely.

A Chance For Betterment
It follows that it would raise the student status in the eyes of the faculty and townsmen if they would abolish Hell Week themselves, and it would make the entire process (which seems inevitable anyway) decidedly less painful for all concerned.

Therefore, if the Student Government Association would take the initiative in doing away with Hell Week, it would not only save the student body much criticism in the future, but would constitute somewhat of a feather in the Student Legislature's cap.

For these reasons is the following bill proposed.

Article I
Section A: After September 15, 1940, no fraternity, sorority, club, oratory, or club, or local fraternity or sorority is found to be violating the rule, it shall be ordered disbanded by the Legislature with the Dean's approval. If the organization is of a national nature the same step shall be taken as in Section C.

Section B: The secretary of the Student Government Association shall, upon the rule's adoption, write to the headquarters of each national fraternity and sorority and each national honorary organization on the campus, explaining the ruling, and asking that that organization's national office cooperate with the Student Government Association in case it should be forced to take the action described above.

Section C: If the committee finds one of the University's national social fraternities or sororities to be violating the rule, the Student Legislature shall send a resolution to that chapter's national headquarters, requesting that that organization's campus charter shall be suspended for a period of not less than two years. The resolution is to bear the approval of the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women, accordingly.

Section D: If a campus local honorary, or club, or local fraternity or sorority is found to be violating the rule, it shall be ordered disbanded by the Legislature with the Dean's approval. If the organization is of a national nature the same step shall be taken as in Section C.

Out Of This World By TOMMY RUSK

We are proud of J. B. Faulconer and Douglas Dick for their unusually fine performance in "Our Town." A comment was heard from a lady that she had enjoyed it more than the production in New York. Also we are proud of some hidden talent of G-Women on the campus. They are Bonnie Middleton and Lucille Bertram who through their cleverness held a burglar at the Alpha Gam house Saturday night until the cops got there but . . . the cops let him get away. Too bad, girls, you'd better handcuff them the next time.

Massah Boyne Wood has finally decided to go in for this datin' business and the first two on his list are Margaretta Raliff and Orel Ruth. 'n Turkey Frank Roberts has decided he is open for suggestions since he is no longer in love. What happened to Sis Puryear, Frank?

John Gough was found robbing the cradle one day at a college "club" when his friends walked in and caught him teaching a little three-year-old tricks. What's the matter John, do the college girls bore you?

Belle W. Peacher came in one night at the dorm just raving what a peachy guy Free Hunter is. Don't let it get you too bad in this spring weather, Belle.

Joe Houlihan's pride was surely hurt the other night when he called on Mr. Swinbroad to speak to his brothers at a banquet. Mr. Swinbroad explained how he had tried to help Joe get over with Jean El-

PERSONALITIES

IV: Jeanne Barker—the University's number one BWOC

We recall some three years back, when we were a mere freshman, people often would point Jeanne Barker out to us as being the University's number one BWOC. She was only a sophomore herself then, and we felt it rather unusual that a person who was only in her second year on the campus should have already earned such a distinguished title. Miss Barker is a senior now, and she certainly has not slipped from her top-rung seat on the mythical thing she has tacked on a few and the year before the girls elected Jeanne chapter president so of-

WAA Basketball Team Drops Game To Transy

Though leading at the half by a score of 13 to 9, the University WAA basketball team was nosed out by a Transylvania team by a score of 22 to 21 Tuesday, March 19, in the women's gym.

Individual high point player was Betty McLendon, Transylvania center, with 12 points. Eloise Rochester, University forward, was second, with ten points.

An invitation for a basketball game has been extended to the women's team of Centre college, and also to Transylvania college for a return game.

Starting line-ups were as follows: University—forward, Eloise Rochester and Doris Settle; center, Doris Reichenbach; guards, Virginia Hickley, Jennie Sullivan, and Margaret Fessler; substitutes, forward, Dorothy Paul; and guard, Mabel Warnecke.

Transylvania—forward, Drymen and Neff; center, McLendon; guards, Penn, Billingsplay, and Woodbury; substitutes, forward, Hall; guards, Elam, Gudegel, and Hundley.

Referees were Lorraine Lewis, University of Kentucky, and Elizabeth Williams, Transylvania college.

ten they actually got in a rut. It finally got so that whenever election night came around, the AGD vice-president would take the chair and chant in the manner of a tobacco auctioneer: "All in favor of Jeanne Barker say aye." The ayes have it there, Jeanne Barker says.

This doesn't sound much like the verbiage of a bunch of tabbies to us.

This year the Barker woman launched her 115-pound censure in the churning waters of campus politics—and her gloomy voice proved to be the oil that calmed them. We recall that night at the political rally last October when, after an hour or two of assorted boing and heckling on the part of a slap-happy audience, J. B. got up to make a few choice promises.

The Barker eyes got a thorough workout that night, and the campus males got caught up on their whistling. The speech itself, we recall, was rather silly, but she kicked pretty good and so nobody cared very much. Dr. Shannon says a thing like that is usually referred to as "appealing to the voter's emotions rather than his reason," and that it is pretty good politics. He must be right, because she got elected with little or no trouble.

However unethical she may be while campaigning for office, Jeanne is quite serious about this student government business. She is the only member of the legislature who served on the committee which drew up the student constitution last spring, and whenever one of the legislators gets puzzled over a particularly opaque clause, he goes to Barker person to find out exactly what it was the forefathers had in mind. She usually knows and isn't at all bashful about explaining it. And as student legislature speeches go, she has made some pretty fair ones here of late.

As far as we have been able to discover, Jeanne Barker hasn't any hobby; unless, that is, one could call Sid Buckley a hobby. This ex-UK journalist, who used to consider himself a Canadian citizen until he found the Ottawa Government was contemplating conscription, is now located at Cincinnati doing an occasional bit of advertising work. He drives down, so we are told, to see Jeanne every other week-end or so.

We wondered precisely what Buckley was in Miss B's young life so we brazenly asked her. "Exactly what," we queried, "is the relation between you and Sid? Are you pinned, or what?" She said she didn't think they were pinned.

"It's just a beautiful friendship thus far," Jeanne added, "he merely drives down to Lexington for an occasional dance. We haven't made any definite plans as yet, really we haven't."

We were about to ask her how Buckley liked Cincinnati, but she said she had a couple of meetings to attend. We thought we'd better let her go after that one.

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

Although the idea may not be exactly exclusive, I venture to predict that public opinion polls, like the automobile and electric lights, are here to stay.

In a land where polls, taken by hordes of people and institutions, are as common as back fence cats, I remain a soul no one (before Tuesday) had ever quizzed. For years Dr. George Gallup and his ilk have cast an ever-lengthening shadow over the United States, still no one asked for my opinion on this, that, or the other thing.

Once gay and blithe, a sobering cloud passed over my spirit as people to my right, people to my left, yea, and even people behind me were questioned by pollsters. It seemed to me that somewhere in this great lottery we call life I had failed.

I was literally as lonely as that girl in the magazine ads who forgets her duty to herself. That was before Tuesday.

Now, however, I am a person reborn for I have received from a certain American Sports Foundation, New York City, a letter and questionnaire which has been stamped to college sports editors all over the nation. It matters not that I can't grasp the object of these questions or what they can possibly lead to, the thing that makes a difference is that at last I have found someone to whom I can give a piece of my mind.

(All those who make nasty cracks concerning the above mentioned "piece of mind" will be penalized.)

I'm Wasting Time Here
But to pass on to you (bless you!) a few of the questions and answers before my chamber of commerce enthusiasm over receiving such an exclusive letter erodes into the space staked off for this essay.

Q.—Who do you consider the outstanding sports figure of 1939, amateur or professional?

A.—Since most everyone will nominate Joe DiMaggio, Nile Kinnick, or Don Budge, I'll slap a saddle on a dark horse, a veritable modern-day Samson who goes by the less Biblical name of "Evil Eye" Finkle. Although his exploits are not yet a part of sports history, "Evil Eye" has merited a particular niche in the sporting hall of fame as the only person known to be currently in captivity who can put a jinx on particular persons or teams by merely keeping his eagle eyes fastened on them.

Joe Caught Him Napping
You may not know it but "Evil Eye" claims to have had his glassy stare on Joe Louis that night last summer when the champ was batted to the seat of his trousers by Tony Galento, the portable beer vat. However, early in the fourth round, after the fight in the fourth stages had been all Galento's, our hero happened to glance away and before he could again cast his irispoll over Louis, Galento had been punched into a land from whence there is no return. "Evil Eye" also claims to have jinxed Tennessee in the Rose Bowl, the Reds in the last World's Series, and all Henry Armstrong's opponents for the past four years. At present he is working on a long range scheme for plaguing Adolf Hitler.

FOUR CAT-FISH TO ENTER LOOP WATER TOURNEY

Swim Carnival Opens Today In New Tech Pool

For the first time in its five year history, Kentucky's far-famed "pool-less" swimming team will be represented in the annual Southeastern Conference water tourney which opens this afternoon in Georgia Tech's new $200,000 pool in Atlanta.

Four members of the Kentucky squad, Captain Lloyd Ramsey, Coach Frank Roberts, Bud Scott and Letellie Stephenson, left early yesterday by train for the meet. Roberts and Ramsey will enter the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events, Scott, who has broken the state 150 yard backstroke record five times, will enter his specialty and Stephenson will take part in the diving contest.

Although disregarded in championship gossip, the Cat-fish, however, are given a good chance of picking up enough points to grab fourth, or possibly even third place in the tank carnival. Florida, winner of the meet for the past four years and undefeated since 1934, is again top heavy favorite to take the title, with L. S. U. furnishing the main opposition.

Favored for third place is the University of Georgia, while Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia Tech are expected to wage a three-way fight for the next place.

Basketball Coaches Speak At Banquets

Returning to the banquet circuit, Coach Adolph Rupp, head Kentucky basketball coach, and Paul McBrayer, assistant Cat coach, were guest speakers during the past week at age dinners given in Lawrenceburg and Winchester.

Wednesday night the pair spoke at a banquet jointly honoring members of the Lawrenceburg and Kavanaugh high school cage squads. McBrayer, before coming to Kentucky as assistant coach in 1934, was net tutor at Kavanaugh.

Not only Rupp, but also members of Kentucky's varsity squad, were guests last night at a dinner party held in the First Christian church at Winchester and honoring the coaches and basketball squads of Winchester, Clark County and Trapp high schools.

Coach Calls Baseballers

First Meeting Slated For 3:30 Today In Main Gym

Faced with cut-throat 16 game schedule, including 8 Southeastern Conference bouts, Coach Frank Moseley has issued his first official call for Kentucky varsity baseball team candidates to meet this afternoon at 3:30 in Alumni gym.

Although the Cat pitching corps and catchers have been holding comparatively light workouts indoors for two weeks, the remainder of the team will be forced to round into playing shape in less than two weeks. The first assignment on the schedule pits Kentucky against Ohio State on the Stoll diamond April 5 and 6.

From last year's team that won 5 games in 12 times out, Coach Moseley will have to fill both two graduated positions, first base and center field. Lost in the June diploma round-up were Randal Phillips, the teams leading hitter who batted over .500, and Bob Ticer, who covered plenty of space in the outfield.

Otherwise the team shapes up much stronger than the aggregation that last season presented a powerful batting attack but was jittery as a bridegroom at the church steps in its defensive work.

The complete schedule:
April 5, 6—Ohio State, here.
April 18—Eastern, there.
April 20—Cincinnati, there.
April 24—Xavier, here.
April 26, 27—Tennessee, here.
May 3, 4—Vanderbilt, there.
May 7—Eastern, here.
May 10, 11—Vanderbilt, here.
May 16—Cincinnati, here.
May 21, 22—Tennessee, there.
May 27—Xavier, there.

All-Stars

The Intramural all-star basketball teams as selected by tournament officials and referees:

All-Campus: Zoeller, F. Gough, F. Harris, C. Spicer, G. Rose, G.

Tourney Entries Deadline Near

Today and tomorrow are the last days remaining for registration in the all-campus checker tournament which will begin on Monday in the Union game room. All men and women who wish to enter must leave their names at the information desk. A trophy cup will be awarded to the winner of the matches.

Intramurals

By FRED HILL

The "K" Club, flashing an 18-point scoring streak in the second half, gained the title of University Intramural basketball champions with a 30-20 win over Sigma Nu Tuesday night in the Gym annex.

Despite the fact that their ace scorer, Larry Spears, was kept well in hand by the smaller Greek team, the rangy "K" clubbers continually broke Joe Shepherd and Dave Zoeller loose for easy crisp shots.

During the first half neither team was able to grab a decisive advantage and, though both shot continually, the white-shirted "K" Club five lead at intermission by a narrow three point margin, 12-9.

In the second half the winners offense began to click and before the period was half over they had acquired a 21-12 edge.
